

American Association of Anatomists' highest education medal to Honorary Consultant Professor Wojciech Pawlina

The Department of Anatomy rejoices with Professor Wojciech Pawlina, Chair of Anatomy, Mayo Clinic, on being awarded the prestigious AAA's Henry Gray/Elsevier Distinguished Educator Award 2017 – the highest education medal for education in the anatomical sciences at the medical/dental, graduate, or undergraduate level of teaching. He joins the ranks of luminaries and past recipients, that include Keith Moore, Carmine Clemente, Vid Persaud and Richard Drake, who are all renowned giants in human anatomy education. Professor Pawlina has been closely associated with the Department of Anatomy, NUSMed, for close to a decade and has made valuable contributions to the education mission of the department. We are indeed proud of Professor Pawlina's achievement and his well deserved award!
