Part 1: Sharing on

The Journey of the Korean Journal of Medical Education (KJME)

Prof Hyunmi Park

Junior International Editor, Korean Journal of Medical Education
Department of Medical Education, Korea University College of Medicine, Korea

Prof Young-Mee Lee

Senior Editor, Korean Journal of Medical Education
Department of Medical Education, Korea University College of Medicine, Korea

The Korean Journal of Medical Education (KJME) has a 35-year history, spanning 35 volumes and 1,064 articles. Evolving from biannual to quarterly publication, it gained recognition from the Korean Research Foundation. In 2014, KJME became an international journal, fully adopting English in 2016. It achieved listings in MEDLINE, PubMed Central, and SCOPUS in 2019.

Under Professor Young-Mee Lee's editorial leadership in 2017, KJME underwent a Publication Type Evolution, introducing the 'Medical Education in an Asian Context' section, providing a platform to share trends in medical education across the continent. Amid the 2020 pandemic, KJME swiftly launched the 'Medical Education in the Age of Uncertainty' section, focusing on COVID-19 challenges.

Our presentation will explore KJME's journey and its dynamic evolution in medical education publishing.
