

EFFECTIVE COURSE DESIGN FOR HEALTH PROFESSIONS EDUCATION (HPE)

Participants' Feedback:

"The enthusiasm, expertise and rich experiences of all the facilitators."

"Enjoyed all aspects of the workshop."

Course Description

Effective course design is central to develop a safe, effective and an empathetic healthcare practitioner. Contemporary best evidence practices in developing health professional courses employ an outcome-based approach. It is important for faculty planners to review the current trends, issues and challenges in curriculum development, including the need to reappraise our roles as content experts in medical and health professions education. The focus of this module would be to critically evaluate and apply best evidence medical education (BEME) approaches.

Workshop Objectives

At the end of the workshop, participants should be able to:

- Discuss principles of outcome-based education
- Identify course outcomes
- Discuss the principles of contemporary practices in course design
- Develop course content and assessment strategies
- Design and apply effective learning strategies
- Develop appropriate program evaluation approaches
- Discuss ways of enhancing capability and development of faculty beyond just content expertise
