

STUDENT AND FACULTY WELL-BEING

Course Description

Student and faculty in the today's health professions education (HPE) settings face increased stressors and higher demands from the academic and work environment. Subsequently, this might lead to burnout and lower motivation, resulting in sub-optimal productivity. As such, the importance of well-being and self-care strategies become imperative. The role of the educators in identifying and providing practical approaches to promote well-being among distressed students and faculty will contribute to the overall well-being of the team.

Workshop Objectives

At the end of the course, participants should be able to:

- Explain the importance of student and faculty well-being
- Identify potential factors that may affect the well-being of students and faculty
- Implement strategies to promote well-being in their workplace

Who should attend?

All Healthcare Professional Educators (doctors, dentists, pharmacists, nurses and allied health professionals) and administrative staff who teach, develop and manage education programmes are welcome to attend.
