

Master of Community Health (MCH)

Make a Transformative Difference in the Community

As healthcare needs evolve with an ageing population and the rise of chronic conditions, the demand for skilled professionals in community health has never been greater. The Master of Community Health programme equips graduates to meet these challenges head-on—preparing them to design, lead, and implement solutions that improve health outcomes across diverse communities. Through a multidisciplinary learning environment, graduates gain the knowledge and practical skills to innovate, collaborate across sectors, and respond to global health challenges with confidence and impact.
